MR. JUSTICE STEWART, dissenting.

The Court says that the question before us "is whether the Fourth Amendment should be extended" to prohibit the warrantless seizure of Edwards' clothing. I think, on the contrary, that the real question in this case is whether the Fourth Amendment is to be ignored. For in my view the judgment of the Court of Appeals can be reversed only by disregarding established Fourth Amendment principles firmly embodied in many previous decisions of this Court.

As the Court has repeatedly emphasized in the past, "the most basic constitutional rule in this area is that 'searches conducted outside the judicial process, without prior approval by judge or magistrate, are per se unreasonable under the Fourth Amendment—subject only to a few specifically established and well-delineated exceptions.'" Coolidge v. New Hampshire, 403 U. S. 443, 454-455; Katz v. United States, 389 U. S. 347, 357. Since it is conceded here that the seizure of Edwards' clothing was not made pursuant to a warrant, the question becomes whether the Government has met its burden of showing that the circumstances of this seizure brought

United States, Petitioner, v. Eugene H. Edwards and William T. Livesay.	}	On Writ of Certiorari to the United States Court of Ap- peals for the Sixth Circuit.

[February —, 1974]

MR. JUSTICE WHITE delivered the opinion of the Court.

The question here is whether the Fourth Amendment should be extended to exclude from evidence certain clothing taken from respondent Edwards while he was in custody at the city jail approximately 10 hours after his arrest.

Shortly after 11 p. m. on May 31, 1970, respondent Edwards was lawfully arrested on the streets of Lebanon, Ohio, and charged with attempting to break into that city's Post Office.¹ He was taken to the local jail and placed in a cell. Contemporaneously or shortly thereafter, investigation at the scene revealed that the attempted entry had been made through a wooden window which apparently had been pried up with a pry bar, leaving paint chips on the window sill and wire mesh screen. The next morning, trousers and a T-shirt were purchased for Edwards to substitute for the clothing

¹ Respondent's alleged confederate, Edward Livesay, was copetitioner in this case, but died after the petition for certiorari was granted. We therefore vacate the judgment as to him and remand the case to the District Court with directions to dismiss the indictment. Durham v. United States, 401 U. S. 481 (1971).

MR. JUSTICE MARSHALL, concurring in the result.

It is well settled that the search incident to arrest exception to the warrant requirement authorizes the police, without a search warrant, "contemporaneously" with the arrest, "to search persons lawfully arrested . . . in order to find and seize things connected with the crime . . ." Agnello v. United States, 269 U. S. 20, 30 (1925). See also Chimel v. California, 395 U. S. 752 (1969). "When a man is legally arrested for an offense, whatever is found upon his person . . . which may be used to prove the offense may be seized and held as evidence in the prosecution." Carroll v. United States, 267 U. S. 132, 158 (1925). As I view the present case, the police did nothing more than exercise this authority.

At the time of his arrest, the police had the authority to seize the clothing respondent was wearing in order to determine whether it contained evidence of the attempted break-in with which he was charged.* By taking

*The seizure in this case thus stands on a different footing from the seizure of the cigarette package in United States v. Robinson, — U. S. — (1973). In Robinson it was conceded that the seizure could not be justified by any need to discover or preserve evidence of the crime for which the defendant had been arrested, driving with a revoked operator's permit. See — U. S., at — (MARSHALL, J., dissenting).

MEMORANDUM TO THE CONFERENCE

Re: No. 73-88 -- United States v. Edwards

On March 15th I circulated a proposed opinion "concurring in the result" in this case.

Since then I have been holding a "reargument" with myself and find that this proposed opinion and my dissent in United States v. Robinson just cannot stay in bed together.

Therefore, I now withdraw my proposed concurrence and join Potter's dissent.
