[February —, 1977]

MR. JUSTICE STEWART, concurring in the judgment.

I agree with the Court that Sanders cannot seek judicial review of the Secretary's refusal to reopen a final decision denying social security benefits. I arrive at that conclusion, however, by a somewhat shorter route.

Section 205 (h) of the Social Security Act, 42 U. S. C. § 405 (h), states in full:

"The findings and decisions of the Secretary after a hearing shall be binding upon all individuals who were parties to such hearing. No findings of fact or decision of the Secretary shall be reviewed by any person, tribunal, or governmental agency except as herein provided. No action against the United States, the Secretary, or any officer or employe thereof shall be brought under section 41 of Title 28 to recover on any claim arising under this subchapter."

It is clear that the determination not to reopen the prior decision denying benefits to Sanders was a "finding[]" of fact or decision of the Secretary." The conclusion is thus inescapable, as I see it, that the administrative decision before us is not to "be reviewed by any person, tribunal, or governmental agency except as herein provided"—that is, except
